How do I modify questions in an InQuizitive assignment?

Questions cannot be modified in InQuizitive assignments. However, you can omit questions associated with Learning Objectives that won't be covered in an assignment.

If you or your students should come across any problematic questions, please report them via the Question Help/Challenge button, and the Norton media editorial team will address them immediately.

What types of questions will students see in InQuizitive activities?

Our goal in developing InQuizitive has been to provide the technology for our question authors to ask about each individual concept in a way that's engaging, thought-provoking, and fun for students. We've developed many different question types in InQuizitive—12 at last count (and many types have a number of different “variants”)—to allow us to ask creative questions about the variety concepts and disciplines our books cover.

Every question in InQuizitive is essentially a mini-game in itself and all share the following characteristics:

- All questions are interactive in one way or another: students have to drag-and-drop elements from one place to another; find and click a choice, a part of an image, or a part of a sentence; or type something to answer the question.
- In every question, students get immediate feedback after every click, drag/drop, or keystroke. InQuizitive corrects students as soon as they start down the wrong path to answering a question—before they've gone down that path long enough to develop a misunderstanding.
- There is no “I give up” or “Show me the answer” button in InQuizitive. Every question is designed to guide students to generate the correct answer themselves, even if they don't know the answer when they start.

What if a student doesn't know the answer to a question, or finds a problem with a question?

Students can't give up or skip questions when they don't initially know the answer. Instead, students must make an initial guess (after setting their confidence level appropriately), and then InQuizitive guides them to generate the correct answer themselves if their initial guess is wrong.

If a student feels a question is incorrect or unfair, he or she can click the Question Help/Challenge button and briefly explain the issue with the question.

Can I create a custom InQuizitive assignment?

Yes! While it is not possible to create your own customized InQuizitive questions, you can create a custom assignment that combines the questions from several different chapters into one larger assignment, or splits a single chapter into multiple assignments. This could be useful if you cover a single chapter over multiple weeks or cover topics from multiple chapters in a single week; or you could create a custom assignment with questions from many chapters to use when helping your students prepare for mid-term or final exams.

In InQuizitive, click on the Create Custom InQuizitive Assignment button.
