How do I complete Tutorials?
Last Modified on 07/03/2024 11:57 am EDT

To complete Tutorial activities and receive a grade, you must answer every question available, but you do not have to get them all correct on your first attempt.

The system will guide you through a series of sections that you must complete in order. The system will not let you move forward to the next section in the activity until you have answered all questions in that section.

Sections in the navigation bar will turn blue once they have been completed. Sections you have not started will be gray.

If you try to move on without answering all questions in a section, you will receive this message.

After you complete a section, the continue button will appear at the bottom of the screen.

✓ Look for recurrent themes in a text, image, or media messages.

Analyze variables and the relationships among them.

Define the sociological terms that will define the subject of the study.

Conduct fieldwork and take careful notes.

Nice job!

Researchers first identify specific variables or themes in an existing source, and then analyze the meaning of them.

Question 3 of 3

Fill in the blanks to complete the passage about statuses and roles.

A status is a position in a social hierarchy that comes with a set of expectations. A master status is one that is always relevant and affects all other statuses we possess. Thus, master statuses are particularly prone to stereotyping , when people make assumptions about what a person is like, based on a characteristic viewed as predominant.

role   role strain

Nice job!

While agents of socialization play an important role in developing our individual identities, so does the larger scaffolding of society. This happens as we take on, or have imposed upon us, different statuses and roles.

CONTINUE ❯

If you have not answered all questions in the sections, you will not see a continue button.

image, or media messages.

among them.

Define the sociological terms that will define the subject of the study.

Conduct fieldwork and take careful notes.

Nice job!

Researchers first identify specific variables or themes in an existing source, and then analyze the meaning of them.

Question 3 of 3

Fill in the blanks to complete the passage about statuses and roles.

A status is a position in a social hierarchy that comes with a set of expectations. A master status is one that is always relevant and affects all other statuses we possess. Thus, master statuses are particularly prone to [   ], when people make assumptions about what a person is like, based on a characteristic viewed as predominant.

role ⁺   stereotyping ⁺   role strain ⁺

Correct so far...

Keep going until you've filled in all the blanks.

Once you complete a Tutorial activity, your preliminary grade of 100% will be recorded. Remember, your instructor can change this grade at any time.

What Do You Know?　　Read　　Step 1: Finding a Focus　　Step 2: Analyzing Roles and Portrayals　　Step 3: Evaluating TV as a Socializing Agent　　Apply　　Conclusion

Conclusion

Great work! You've now completed the Chapter 4 Data Workshop Tutorial, with a completion score of 100%!*.

Note this is a preliminary score. Your instructor may read your written responses and adjust your score accordingly.